QUESTION 2

2.1 Read the following extract and answer the questions that follow.

In Southern Africa, hunter-gatherer communities, known as the San or Bushmen, have existed for thousands of years until today. Archaeologists claim that the ancestors of the San go back as far as 20 000 years! In this time, the San society and religion have gone through many changes. The most important ritual, which is still performed today, is called the trance dance. The trance dance helped to heal those who were sick by connecting them to the power of the spirit world. The ritual also heals the group as a whole because it reminds them that they are part of a community that can help each other during difficult times.

QUESTION 3

3.1 Read the following extract and answer the questions that follow.

Many of the world’s religions tell people that they must take time off from work. ‘Leisure’ is what people do to unwind and enjoy themselves when their work is done. They socialise together, play games, read, watch TV, and so on. However, what people do for recreation sometimes rouses serious ethical questions.

[Taken from: Shuters Religion Studies Grade 11 by Donne et al 2006:74]

3.1.1 Write TWO leisure activities that you think most religions are in favour of, and write TWO leisure activities that you think religions are against. (8)

3.1.2 Define the difference between leisure activities that religions support, and those that they condemn. (1 x 2) (1 x 2) (4)

3.1.3 Summarise the main reasons why religions seem to be against leisure activities involving drugs, alcohol and gambling. (4 x 2) (8)

3.2 Read the extract below and answer the questions that follow.

Drugs are addictive. When people take drugs, they cannot stop, even when they want to. People have to be protected by making it hard for them to get drugs.

[Unknown]

3.3 List FIVE steps that take place in the process of religious revitalisation. (5 x 2) (10) [50]
QUESTION 4

4.1 Explain the difference between representational and presentational symbols. (10)

4.2 Read the following Hindu story and answer the questions that follow.

Before the world, sky or stars, there was empty darkness, but it was warm and damp and rippling through the universe. Then slowly a sound began, until it filled all space: OM as this sound-word spread, it turned the universe into an endless ocean. Bobbing up from the depths came a seed, which became a golden egg. The OM sound enfolded it and was inside the eggshell until, after a long time, it formed itself into Brahma, the Creator of Worlds.

When Brahma was ready to be born, he hatched from the golden egg like a chick. He made the sky from half the shell, and the earth from the other half. He set the air between to keep them apart.

When the earth was ready, Brahma created living things of every kind, and gave them the sense of touch and the power to create themselves. Many ages passed, and he roamed the Earth, delighting his creation. Then he divided himself and made another being, Saravasti. As soon as she came into being, he fell in love with her. They were married, and spent their wedding night (of a hundred years) in a secret cave. At the end of this time, the first human being, Manu, was born.

4.2.7 How, do you think, this Hindu story about creation was retained until it was written down? (2)
4.3 Read the extract below and answer the questions that follow.

Marriage is a very important transitional period. There is a mixing of worlds, a coming together the husband’s clan ancestors and that of the wife’s clan ancestors. So marriage is not just between one individual and another. Clans are brought together. Spiritually it means that two ancestral worlds are brought together – two bloods are brought together in the marriage. This calls for intricate and elaborate rituals to make the process possible in a safe way, because where otherness comes together like that, especially where blood is involved; it is a potentially dangerous thing to happen. It could have very destructive consequences if it is not handled properly.
